ABOUT NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC

Set up in 1963 by the Ngee Ann Kongsi as Ngee Ann College with only 116 students, Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP) has come a long way from its humble beginnings to establish itself as one of the leading institutions of higher learning in Singapore. Its vision is to prepare graduates with a passion for learning, values for life, and competencies to thrive in a global workplace.

Today, the polytechnic offers 36 full-time diplomas and five Common Entry Programmes through the following academic schools:

- School of Business & Accountancy
- School of Design & Environment
- School of Engineering
- School of Film & Media Studies
- School of Health Sciences
- School of Humanities & Interdisciplinary Studies
- School of InfoComm Technology
- School of Life Sciences & Chemical Technology

In the continuing education and training (CET) space, NP offers a wide variety of training programmes and courses for adult learners through its CET Academy (CETA). To date, over 332,000 adult learners have completed either formal diploma programmes or customised short courses with CETA.

NP's CET courses aim to help working adults future-proof their careers through reskilling and upskilling, while providing a pipeline of talent for emerging and growth industries. A polytechnic for all ages, NP is committed to drive lifelong learning to help our learners stay relevant in today's global economy.

The Ngee Ann Experience

Against the backdrop of a volatile and globalised world, NP aims to provide an educational experience that focuses on industry relevance, builds global readiness, and offers multiple pathways to cater for diverse learner profiles and aspirations. Placing industry at the core of students' learning, NP leverages its close links with industry partners to create authentic learning experiences that prepare students for career success. Through its Industry-in-Curriculum framework, one-third of all course curricula is co-developed, co-delivered and/or co-assessed by industry partners.

ABOUT NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC

A key platform for collaboration with industry partners is NP's Sustainability Education & Ecosystem Development (SEED) initiative, which drives the development of talent for the green economy and sustainability innovation across the institution.

Upholding the belief of doing good and doing well, NP also champions social sustainability. It does so by partnering industry for the Service-Learning curriculum and Corporate Purpose Internship programme that it pioneered, as well as consultancy projects led by its Centre for Organisational Resilience and Inclusion.

Committed to strengthening students' career agility, NP is the first polytechnic to provide students the opportunity to graduate with a minor on top of a diploma. Known as the Personalised Learning Pathway (PLP) programme, it offers students a wide spectrum of minors and learning units across four different pathways – Professional Skills, Entrepreneurship, Global Readiness and Social Leadership.

In 2025, NP launched the Go FLEX (Flexible Learning EXperience) initiative to develop the next generation of highly versatile, deeply skilled, and multi-disciplinary graduates. With eight learning pathways including double majors, specialisations, university pathways, one-year industry immersions, multi-disciplinary capstones and overseas programmes, etc., students get to customise their academic journey for more career and further study options to build their success.

Through all these initiatives, NP aspires for every graduate to be a passionate learner, big-hearted person and global-smart professional that will stand them in good stead in the future economy.

FROM THE PRINCIPAL & CEO

Dear Class of 2026,

Congratulations on graduating from Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP)!

To the graduands of our full-time diploma courses, you can take pride in how you have grown – in knowledge, confidence and perspective.

Your learning has extended beyond the classroom. You have worked on projects shaped by industry, built your portfolios and professional networks during internships, and applied your skills to address real community needs through Service-Learning initiatives. These experiences reflect what an NP education is about – equipping you not just with skills, but with the ability to use them meaningfully.

Through NP's Go FLEX pathways launched last year, many of you shaped your learning in ways that reflected your interests. Some explored specialisations and university pathways, while others joined overseas programmes. In doing so, you gained an added edge to realising your aspiration.

As you step into the world beyond NP, remember that you have built a strong foundation for the next phase of your journey.

What you have achieved here is just the beginning. The world of work will keep changing, and your ability to adapt will matter just as much as what you already know. We hope you will return to NP to deepen your expertise or develop new skill sets at our CET Academy (CETA).

FROM THE PRINCIPAL & CEO

To our CETA graduands, well done on reaching this milestone. Many of you have balanced your studies alongside work, family and other responsibilities. That takes discipline and perseverance, and you should be proud of what you have accomplished. I am confident that the skills you have developed here will empower you to seize new career and growth opportunities.

Wherever life takes you, know that you will always be part of the NP family. Carry the NP spirit with you and continue making a positive difference in your community and beyond.

Once again, congratulations on your achievements. I wish you every success in the exciting journey ahead, and I look forward to hearing your stories in the years to come.

Warmest Wishes,

Mr Lim Kok Kiang

On Point for Success

As a fencer for 15 years, Chin Chun Wai knows that a point is rarely scored in the moment it lands – it is a culmination of training and strategy honed over time. “The audience only sees the action, but 90% of the work is in your preparation,” he explains.

This same instinct guided the student-athlete’s path to Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP). Growing up in a family rooted in the sciences, Chun Wai realised his strengths lay in a different direction. Applying via the Early Admissions Exercise (EAE), he chose his course the way he approaches a match – methodically, then decisively. Business Studies felt a clear fit for someone who thrived on ideas rather than equations.

At NP, Chun Wai carried that sense of purpose into his learning journey. As he explored opportunities across campus, he realised that no two journeys were the same and that he could shape his own path. “No one has the same experience here,” he shares. “What you take away is determined by what you choose to do with your time.”

He made the most of it. NP’s Business Studies course gave him the flexibility to keep up his intensive fencing training while fully immersing himself in campus life – from the Overseas Immersion Programme and Poly Forum to the National Youth Council Leaders course. He also joined the Leo Club, earning the Bronze Community Service Award for over 30 hours of volunteering and events-based leadership.

NGEE ANN KONGSI GOLD MEDAL AND LIEN YING CHOW GOLD MEDAL

In his second year, Chun Wai chose to specialise in Entrepreneurship, a decision made in 5 minutes. That was exactly how long the lecturer's pitch took to win him over. "I wanted to learn how to pitch ideas convincingly – to tell a story and have it land well," he beams. In SPARK!, NP's incubator space, Chun Wai found himself pitching, iterating and innovating alongside peers, some of whom were already running their own businesses.

This spirit of collaboration culminated in Duely, a multidisciplinary capstone project for industry partner Saison Capital, which uses AI-powered tools to cut the time taken for venture capital due diligence from 30 hours to 30 minutes. Duely earned a showcase spot at SWITCH 2024, Asia's leading tech and innovation festival. His internship at Enterprise Singapore rounded out his NP journey, giving him a first-hand view of how innovation policy shapes Singapore's startup ecosystem.

Throughout his internship, Chun Wai never stopped training. When an unexpected call came to represent Singapore at the Asian and World Fencing Championships in Tbilisi, Georgia, he was ready. For him, balancing athletics and academics remains his proudest achievement at NP. "Luck is where preparation meets opportunity," he reflects. "I was prepared."

Chun Wai will read Accountancy and Business at Nanyang Technological University on the bond-free Nanyang Global Leaders Scholarship – with the 2029 SEA Games firmly in his sights.

Making It Work

Leow Kar Lok has always been drawn to figuring out how things work and how to make things better.

As a secondary school student, he experimented with 3D printing and design, learning through trial and error. Those early projects sparked his interest in building solutions from scratch – but it was at Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP) where that passion truly took root.

Through hands-on projects in his Automation & Mechatronic Systems course, Kar Lok learnt to test ideas, iterate, and turn concepts into working solutions. “The joy comes from making something work, especially when you don’t have a clear guide to follow,” he shares.

“The broad-based curriculum also meant I got to explore technologies such as robotics, autonomous systems, computer vision and industrial Internet of Things, giving me the opportunity to develop integrative solutions,” he adds.

His skills were put to the test in his final-year project. Tasked with building a robotic system with strict weight limits, the team had to rethink conventional approaches when metal components – typically used to drive movement – were no longer viable. Kar Lok responded by designing a lightweight 3D-printed plastic chain from scratch to replace these parts. Through multiple rounds of prototyping and testing, he refined the design until the system performed as intended.

LEE KUAN YEW AWARD AND Ngee ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

He applied the same problem-solving instincts beyond technical projects. As a student leader for NP Ambassadors, he managed recruitment drives involving close to 400 candidates and identified a bottleneck in manual registration and verification. Instead of relying on additional manpower, he reworked the process by building a simple automated system using Google Sheets, reducing waiting time and minimising manual checks.

Encouraged by its success, he later adapted the system into a points tracking tool for all NP Ambassadors to have clearer visibility over their progress.

Reflecting on these experiences, Kar Lok says, "I realised that solving problems isn't always about building something new. Sometimes, it's about simplifying what already exists and making it work better."

Looking ahead, Kar Lok plans to pursue a degree in robotics at a local university. He hopes to deepen his work in automation and 3D printing, building systems that are more reliable and efficient.

For a Greater Cause

Rock climbing was not something Don Koo expected to shape his journey – but it did.

Before joining Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP), Don was drawn to hands-on lab work but struggled with theory-based learning and found it difficult to translate his interest into grades. When he enrolled in the Diploma of Biomedical Science, he was still searching for a way to bridge that gap.

It was at NP that he picked up rock climbing as a casual activity – an experience that soon instilled a sense of discipline and focus that would carry him through his studies and beyond.

Each climb required him to read a route, test different moves and adjust when something did not work. “Just like climbing,” he explains, “I learnt to break things down into smaller steps. It helped me stay focused and keep improving each time.”

With opportunities to apply what he had learnt, Don began to translate this mindset into his coursework – breaking down complex problems, reflecting on setbacks and refining his methods. Over time, he found his footing and gained greater confidence in his studies.

LEE KUAN YEW AWARD AND Ngee ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

These experiences also pushed him to look beyond his own progress. He began to see how this methodical approach could be applied to making a meaningful impact in healthcare.

In his final year, it shaped his experience in the Integrated Clinical Training Programme, a unique programme borne out of NP's exclusive partnership with Singapore General Hospital. As a research intern, he developed a prototype to streamline labour-intensive data collection for Parkinson's disease studies, reducing manual effort and the likelihood of human error.

Beyond the lab, Don channels this same drive into the community. Through his Minor in Social Leadership, he co-organised a service project for migrant workers, where conversations during the workshop deepened his understanding of their lived experiences and resilience – motivating him to continue seeking out opportunities to give back.

Today, he volunteers regularly with HealthServe – which supports low-wage migrant workers – by assisting with frontline operations and patient coordination. Working on the ground, he has seen the impact of timely and accessible care, strengthening his resolve to pursue a career in healthcare and become a source of support for his future patients.

"I am drawn to hands-on work where I can see the impact I am making and build relationships with patients," he shares. "I want to do something that lets me support people in meaningful ways."

Staying the Course in Science and Life

Unlike many of her peers, Zenn Tan entered the workforce at just 13, shortly after completing her PSLE.

“I remember feeling very overwhelmed at first,” she recalls. “In the working world, no one is going to guide you through everything. I had to learn through observation and stand on my own.”

Starting work at a young age built her discipline and sense of responsibility – traits that would come to define her approach to both work and study. Over time, she took on a range of roles – from service crew and banquet waitress to tutor and warehouse assistant – learning to adapt to different environments and take ownership of her work.

Zenn carried this mindset into her three years at NP, where she pursued the Diploma in Chemical & Biomolecular Engineering as an A*STAR Science Award (Polytechnic) scholar.

She entered the course through the Early Admissions Exercise, drawn to how science and mathematics could be applied to real-world problems. While managing her studies, Zenn continued working, making deliberate choices about how she spent her time.

LEE KUAN YEW AWARD AND Ngee ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Eager to grow beyond her core disciplines, Zenn chose to pursue minors in Foreign Languages (Japanese) and Global Readiness under NP's Personalised Learning Pathway. "I am very grateful that NP offers such opportunities," she says. "They allowed me to grow not just academically, but also personally, broadening my perspectives."

Her internship at A*STAR's Institute of Materials Science and Engineering was another experience that honed her adaptability. With little prior background, she built her understanding from the ground up, reading extensively, identifying experimental bottlenecks, and troubleshooting when things did not go as planned.

"It required patience and critical thinking," Zenn shares. "I had to propose solutions based on both theory and observation, and learn to keep going even when things didn't work."

She later represented NP at the WorldSkills Singapore 2025 in the Water Technology category, stepping into a high-pressure environment where precision and composure were critical. Guided by her lecturers and supported by a fellow competitor who trained alongside her, Zenn worked through a critical setback in real time to secure a Bronze Medal.

These experiences strengthened her interest in applying engineering to real-world systems, particularly in water and resource management. Today, she is keen to work on practical challenges in sustainability and resource efficiency.

Zenn has received an offer from Nanyang Technological University to pursue a double degree in Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering and Economics and is considering her next steps as she builds on the foundation laid at NP.

Seeing Beyond the Clinic

The first time Raeanne Toh saw a slit lamp demonstration at Ngee Ann Polytechnic's (NP) RED Camp, she was fascinated by the equipment and what it could do for patients.

"I remember thinking how interesting it would be to work with this kind of equipment and use it to help others," she recalls. That moment sparked a journey that would take her far beyond the clinic.

At NP, Raeanne's perspective broadened quickly. As President of the Health Sciences Society, she worked closely with nursing peers to organise activities and engage juniors across disciplines. Through these interactions, she gained a clearer understanding of how different healthcare roles come together to support patient care.

Alongside her internships and exposure to platforms such as the Singapore Optometric Association Conference, she began to see healthcare not as isolated touchpoints, but as a connected system spanning community, retail and specialised care.

This became more apparent during her clinical training, where she worked with elderly patients navigating different eyecare options. Raeanne saw firsthand how overwhelming these choices could be. In response, Raeanne made a conscious effort to slow down, listen, and explain with patience.

"I realised that clear communication isn't just about delivering information. It's about giving patients confidence in their decisions," she reflects.

That insight deepened during her internship at the Singapore National Eye Centre, where she worked in the Low Vision Clinic. There, she witnessed how tailored care could restore not only sight, but also independence. These experiences cemented her belief that guidance and empathy are as critical as technical skill in healthcare.

"NP's applied learning environment gave me the confidence to question, reflect and apply what I learnt directly with patients," Raeanne adds. "Working alongside different healthcare disciplines showed me how care extends beyond a single consultation."

Building on these experiences, Raeanne is pursuing the Bachelor of Integrative Studies at SMU, with the aim of applying her knowledge to the policy and systems level to improve how patients access and navigate care.

"I've seen how much clearer guidance can make a difference to patients," she says. "I hope to contribute to a healthcare system where people feel more supported in understanding and managing their care."

From Tinkerer to the World Stage

From tinkering with Arduino circuits in his younger days to now taking part in international competition, Brandon Yap's curiosity has grown into a clear purpose – developing solutions through engineering.

Now an Electrical Engineering graduate, he will represent Singapore at WorldSkills Shanghai 2026 this September – bringing his precision, grit, and ingenuity to the global stage.

WorldSkills is familiar territory for Brandon. At ITE College West, he competed in the Industrial Control category, winning Silver at the Singapore competition and Gold at the ASEAN level. At Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP), he participated in the Mechatronics event, clinched Gold, and earned his place at the upcoming WorldSkills event alongside his teammate.

His journey has not been without doubt. Entering NP as a direct Year 2 student via the Direct-Entry-Scheme to Polytechnic Programme (DPP), Brandon found the jump in rigour and the transition from ITE to polytechnic initially daunting. But he leaned into the challenge, steadily building the foundations that now underpin his success.

TAY ENG SOON GOLD MEDAL

He credits much of his growth to the steadfast support of his lecturers. “I really appreciate my lecturers’ belief in me and their willingness to spend extra time after class to revisit topics I was unfamiliar with,” he reveals. “Because of them, I’m where I am today.”

That same perseverance powers his daily five-hour WorldSkills training sessions. Balancing coursework with training meant moving straight from classrooms to the lab, day after day. The work is demanding, not just physically but also mentally, as he has encountered repeated failures. Each setback has become a lesson and an opportunity to improve.

With the competition drawing near, Brandon has intensified his training. “The solutions won’t always work out. Instead of letting that set me back, I use it as motivation to keep trying – until I succeed,” he shares.

Brandon has been offered admission to both NUS and NTU to further his studies in electrical engineering. What began as childhood tinkering has become a future defined by creativity and impact. As he prepares for WorldSkills, he stands ready to represent NP with pride and to contribute boldly to the next wave of engineering innovation.

The Tay Eng Soon Gold Medal is awarded each year to the most outstanding Ngee Ann Polytechnic graduate who is formerly from an Institute of Technical Education. First awarded in 1994, the medal is funded by the Tay Eng Soon Scholarship Fund, set up in honour and memory of the late Senior Minister of State for Education, Dr Tay Eng Soon.

Paying it Forward

A note in her yearbook left a lasting impression on Lim Mei Xin. Written by her primary school Chinese teacher, it recognised both her passion and aptitude for the language – an affirmation that stayed with her.

“This small gesture encouraged me to one day become that same role model for my future students,” she recalls.

Determined to pursue that goal, Mei Xin enrolled in Ngee Ann Polytechnic’s (NP) Chinese Studies course, where the Education track allowed her to deepen her understanding of the language while gaining early exposure to the teaching profession.

She further explored this path through an internship at the Ministry of Education’s Curriculum Planning and Development Division. There, she worked on converting traditional textbook content into digital resources for the Chinese Special Programme. Observing how students interacted with these materials gave her a clearer sense of how lessons could be delivered more effectively.

NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Beyond academics, her desire to serve the community deepened during her time in NP. In her first year, she initiated a physical health programme for senior beneficiaries. Their enthusiastic participation and conversations about the techniques they learned showed how meaningful the sessions were, reinforcing her desire to make a difference.

“One of the seniors hugged me after the session! Seeing how much they enjoyed it melted away all my tiredness and re-energised me,” she shares.

In her second year, she expanded this impact further. Together with her course mates, she launched Project Dahlia, a social impact initiative supporting children from lower-income families, a cause close to her heart. Having once been a beneficiary of the Chinese Development Assistance Council and other social service agencies, Mei Xin is now committed to paying that support forward.

The initiative’s maiden project, “Bridging through Traditions”, introduced children to traditional Chinese arts such as paper cutting, tying Chinese knots and making dough figurines. “It was a really heartwarming experience. We received handmade thank-you cards from the children and were told that they miss us!” she says.

Staying on course towards becoming a Chinese educator, Mei Xin has applied for undergraduate programmes with NUS and NTU. She hopes to connect with her students not just as a teacher, but as a mentor they feel comfortable approaching for guidance. She also hopes to continue contributing to the community, supporting seniors and exploring ways to empower youth through education and service.

Bridging the Gap through Design

After 12 years of homeschooling, Jaslyn Chan had to learn how to navigate unfamiliar situations on her own. That experience sharpened her sensitivity to how people interact – and where they struggle to connect – an instinct that now shapes her work as a Design graduate.

“At a young age, I found myself constantly adapting,” she shares. “It made me more observant of how people behave, communicate and connect, especially in new settings.”

At Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP), she began translating these observations into design. Through studio-based modules, Jaslyn learnt to test ideas, refine them through feedback, and design with real users in mind.

“Moving from homeschooling into polytechnic was a big shift for me. I realised how difficult it can be to form genuine connections when you’re new to a place,” she says. “I wanted to create experiences where those interactions feel more natural, not forced.”

NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

This thinking shaped her final-year project, IRL (In Real Life), a platform addressing social isolation among youths by encouraging meaningful offline interactions. Through user testing and peer feedback, she refined the platform to better support real-world engagement. The project went on to earn her the Top Seed Award from Design Business Chamber Singapore.

Building on this, she developed Jazzy Table, a social dining concept that brings strangers together through curated, interest-based experiences. The idea was later awarded funding from NP's incubator, The Sandbox. She plans to develop Jazzy Table into an online platform next.

"The experience gave me insights into how startups turn their ideas into a business," she adds. "I am thankful for NP's startup ecosystem that provided support for students to explore entrepreneurship."

Beyond the classroom, Jaslyn further stretched her capabilities during a six-month product design internship with Kohler in Shanghai. When she was tasked with producing high-quality visualisations using KeyShot – a software she had no prior experience in – she took ownership of closing this gap. Through self-directed learning and feedback from senior designers, she progressed to producing photorealistic renders that met global standards within weeks.

Looking ahead, Jaslyn hopes to further her studies in design and eventually become a lecturer, where she can guide future designers to think critically and design with people in mind.

Stepping Ahead On His Own Terms

When Kitti-Ampon Chia De En chose the polytechnic route, he saw it as a chance to step outside what was familiar and shape his own path. "I wanted to make the most of the opportunities ahead," he says. This set the tone for how he approached his time at Ngee Ann Polytechnic (NP).

He quickly distinguished himself academically, earning the prestigious NP Scholarship and multiple academic awards. More notably, he made a conscious effort to develop himself in different ways.

Seeking to stretch himself further, De En turned to volunteering. Through initiatives with organisations such as ItsRainingRaincoats and Kampong Kakis, as well as Service-Learning projects in NP, he connected with people from different walks of life and gained new perspectives.

"I realised that service is not something that is one way," he reflects. "It can go both ways, where everyone benefits." These experiences reshaped how he saw his role in society.

NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

That same drive to grow is reflected in the breadth of his learning. Alongside his Engineering Science diploma, De En pursued three minors in Global Readiness, Social Leadership and Cybersecurity, as well as a Diploma Plus in Advanced Engineering Mathematics. Each choice was driven by a different curiosity – from his interest in mathematics to a desire to better understand digital systems and how to create impact within communities.

“I wanted to explore different sides of myself and not just stay within what I was already comfortable with,” he shares. “It took planning, and I had to give up some time to rest, but each experience taught me something beyond academics.”

De En also excelled in engineering competitions. His team clinched Overall Champion at the National Robotics Competition and Global Robotics 2023; and achieved third place at the BusTech Grand Challenge with a solution to improve power delivery on public buses.

Citing his attachment at A*STAR as inspiration, De En hopes to embark on a career where he gets to work on solutions that improve everyday life. Drawn to research and development in robotics and electronics, he looks forward to pursuing engineering at NUS or NTU.

Building Tech that Matters

Jeffrey Lee entered Ngee Ann Polytechnic's (NP) Information Technology course with no coding background – only curiosity. Three years later, he is graduating with accolades including awards for building tech that helps seniors live safer.

At the Dell Innovate Dash Hackathon, he and his teammates created FallSafe, a mobile app that lets seniors conduct fall-risk checks at home. Jeffrey led key parts of the software architecture design, combining cloud-native, Internet of Things and artificial intelligence capabilities to translate motion data into practical insights.

"Many seniors only get assessed after they've already fallen," Jeffrey shares. "With FallSafe, we hope to help them spot risks earlier."

To take the idea further, Jeffrey proposed prototyping a wearable motion tracker even though none of them had prior experience in hardware development. The team taught themselves through online resources and tested the device with seniors. Their input shaped a final design built for accessibility, with bold buttons, minimal text and audio cues.

FallSafe won top prize at the hackathon and later received the Lee Hsien Loong Interactive Digital Media Smart Nation Award.

NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

“That project showed me what’s possible when you develop technology with people in mind,” he says.

Beyond competitions, Jeffrey brought the same people-first mindset to the community. As President of Overflow, NP’s IT interest group, he launched Project Pixel Perfect that helped seniors build digital confidence. Leading a team of 50 volunteers, he organised hands-on sessions for the seniors to pick up designing skills on Canva and experiment with generative AI to create family keepsakes.

“Seeing the seniors’ joy in creating something on their own was the best part,” he recalls.

Jeffrey will pursue a degree in Computer Science and hopes to build a career in the public sector, harnessing technology for social good.

“NP gave me room to grow. Now I want to use what I’ve learned to give back,” he reveals.

Finding Her Voice

As someone who found comfort in solitude, Jazel Lai discovered her voice through writing. She started writing her first novel when she was nine, and, by 16, secured a traditional publishing deal. What began as a personal outlet quickly became a way to connect with others through stories.

At Ngee Ann Polytechnic's (NP) Mass Communication course, Jazel set out to go beyond writing and explore how storytelling works across different platforms.

"I was deeply drawn to the writing modules, but I also wanted to learn different aspects of communications such as branding and social media marketing," she shares.

To push past her comfort zone, she joined Toastmasters to build confidence in public speaking. "I was terrified at first. But I told myself to step forward and speak anyway, even when it felt uncomfortable," Jazel recalls.

Each attempt became less daunting. She placed second at the Toastmasters Area Contest and later served as President, leading members and organising school-wide events.

NGEE ANN POLYTECHNIC OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Outside the classroom, Jazel built her skillset through internships across different facets of communications. She helped translate user research into UI/UX concepts and crafted clear, engaging narratives for varied audiences – applying storytelling principles across product design and communications.

“Each experience pushed me to adapt quickly and think differently. It helped me understand what I enjoy and where I can grow,” she says. A year-long internship at Singtel further deepened her exposure, as she rotated across marketing roles and gained clarity on her interests.

Working closely with a mentor, she gained firsthand experience in creative strategy and storytelling, contributing to campaigns such as Singtel’s SG60 campaign and sharpening her sense of what resonates with audiences.

Looking ahead, Jazel is keen to explore how research and storytelling shape understanding and influence society. She plans to pursue English Language & Linguistics, deepen her craft, and eventually give back through teaching.

The Ngee Ann Polytechnic Outstanding Achievement Award is a premier award for all-round excellence. It is presented to a select group of five to 10 top graduates from each graduating batch. The award was presented for the first time in 2010.
